About IdeaNet

We at IdeaNet, are obsessed with Structural Steel and Pre-Engineered Metal Building Engineering Services. We are a California based company achieving great heights (also literally) in the field of comprehensive end-to-end engineering services. We team up with our partners to give actual shape to grand visions. We innovate using both the latest and in-house technologies while following modern trends. We see through the whole project overcoming every challenge big or small within deadlines. And because we see clients as long-term partners, we cut down on costs and risks, massively.

We create each block like a carpenter, not compromising on the quality of the product. Our clients and partners can provide testimonies about our transparency, and thus today we are one of the best steel detailing companies in North America. We believe in working as a team irrespective of which stage of development and support we are in. The number of happy customers of the United States, Canada and across the globe is the certificate of judging our success rate. We are a bunch of committed and hard-working professionals who with their experience and expertise help customers harvest the greatest possible business value. More than profits, professional ethics govern our functioning. We keep in mind the safety of all stakeholders involved.

We help in shaping the future by transforming businesses into tomorrow's wealth and creating the infrastructure that will make life comfortable for generations to come through intelligent and efficient engineering solutions. Our engineering designs are not meant to last for a few years but for quite a few decades. We believe in finding solutions and forging new and long-lasting bonds.

Ever since we came into the market in 2007, we have been raising the bar in the business of delivering flawless engineering designs. Our easy-on-pocket and extremely reliable services have managed to win many hearts and made us one of the major steel detailing companies in North America and Canada, as we minimize risks and add great value to the project.

We make the most of our handpicked human resources and modern-day techniques to deliver projects before deadlines. Our transparent way of functioning has helped us win many more customers, who now trust us with their future projects as well.

We are a company that wears many hats. From being market leaders in the sector of sustainable structural engineering, design, and analysis, to acing architectural solutions in commercial, residential and industrial segments, we are registering our presence in varied fields. Our other primary work includes steel detailing, connection design for structural, miscellaneous, pre-engineered metal buildings, building information modeling services, and precast and rebar detailing services among many others.

Ethical practices are the norm in our organization. We believe that great business culture is built by delivering quality products on time. Our team works with the utmost passion and commitment and churns out only and only quality projects. Employing state-of-the-art software tools, namely, Tekla, SDS/2, AutoCAD, STAAD to name a few, project management techniques, quality control and IP protection policies, we are adept at leveraging our expertise to meet international codes and standards in various industries.
